The value of investments and the income from them can go down as well as up and cannot be guaranteed. Investments in a currency other than the shareholder's own currency, or in a fund that invests in securities denominated in currencies other than its own base currency, will be subject to the movements of foreign exchange rates, which may cause an additional favourable or unfavourable change in value. Consequently, investors may, on selling their shares, receive an amount greater or less than their original investment.

MARKET OVERVIEW

Portfolio Breakdown

Equity markets finished the year strongly, with most major regions making sizeable gains in the fourth quarter. The FTSE All-Share index rose by more than 4%, outperforming its European peers but trailing the US and Japan. In November, the Bank of England's Monetary Policy Committee voted to raise interest rates for the first time since the financial crisis, by 0.25 percentage points to 0.5%. Consumer price inflation has been running above the central bank's 2% target for most of the year and reached 3.1% in November. Despite Chancellor Philip Hammond's promises of housing support and investment in infrastructure and technology, the most striking feature of the Autumn Budget was the Office for Budget Responsibility's greater-than-expected downgrade for UK growth, to 1.5% this year and 1.4% in 2018. In the US, the S&P 500 index hit further all time highs and gained almost 7%. Share prices were boosted by hopes that President Trump's promised tax cuts would soon come to fruition. In aggregate, European equity markets made only muted gains, not helped by the political crisis in Catalonia.

Bond Investments

Amid signs of rising inflation, bonds underperformed equities over the quarter, as investors factored in an increase in the benchmark US interest rate in December. After this duly materialised on 13 December, most scrutiny focused on the accompanying policy statement, in which the central bank reiterated its forecast of three more rate rises in 2018. Although UK interest rates rose in November, the European Central Bank kept rates unchanged while extending the confirmed lifetime of its bond buying programme. Corporate bonds performed broadly in line with government bonds. High yield bonds underperformed both investment grade corporate bonds and government bonds, producing a negative return for the quarter.
