The figures show the performance growth over 5 years as discrete 12 month periods, on a mid price basis with gross income reinvested. All charges and fees, except any initial charge, have been included in the performance figures. Source: FE.

Past performance should not be seen as an indication of future performance.

The value of investments and the income from them can go down as well as up and cannot be guaranteed. Investments in a currency other than the shareholder's own currency, or in a fund that invests in securities denominated in currencies other than its own base currency, will be subject to the movements of foreign exchange rates, which may cause an additional favourable or unfavourable change in value. Consequently, investors may, on selling their shares, receive an amount greater or less than their original investment.

MARKET OVERVIEW

Portfolio Breakdown

Following a challenging first quarter, most global equity markets rebounded in the second quarter of 2018. This was driven by robust US economic data and a raft of better than expected corporate earnings results. The former allowed the US Federal Reserve ("Fed") to raise rates in June, with two more hikes likely this year. Meanwhile, the oil price surpassed a four year high in May on supply concerns. Perhaps the biggest talking point, though, was the deterioration in trade relations between the US and China, after each announced a series of new tariffs. This, along with the rising US dollar, meant emerging markets were down for the quarter. UK equities delivered a robust performance, led by firms that make their earnings overseas. They were the main beneficiaries of the slump in sterling in May, precipitated by the Bank of England's decision to hold interest rates. European economic growth remained positive, while corporate earnings were good. However, political risk soon returned with Spain replacing its leader, Italy struggling to agree a new coalition government, and Germany's coalition government disagreeing over immigration policy.

Bond Investments

It was a bumpy quarter for global government bonds. While risk aversion mounted in May on the prospect of a trade war between the US and China, government bond yields were more heavily influenced by Fed indications that US interest rates could rise more quickly than had previously been expected. Core government bond prices in the US, Germany and the UK fell in response. Thereafter, however, political uncertainty in Italy and Spain fuelled demand for core government bonds, driving prices higher. Corporate bonds began well, but struggled to make headway as Italian politics, then the China-US trade tensions, unnerved investors.
